It was the day of the All-Ireland. Waterford were playing Kilkenny in Croke Park and thousands of supporters were making their way to the big match. Cian was just one of these supporters, eagerly awaiting the decisive match. When Cian arrived at Croke Park many of the supporters were already seated. Waterford were already out on the pitch warming up, their minds set on the match ahead. Their opponents came onto the pitch soon after. Cian's favourite player soared onto Croke Park, hurley and sliotar in hand. The supporters let out a mighty roar and everyone was looking forward to an exciting match. The referee blew the whistle, signaling that the game was about to begin. He threw in the sliotar and Kilkenny won possession straight away. Croke Park came to life as the supporters took to their feet to get behind their team. The referee ensured that both teams played fairly. Cian was impressed with the manner in which Waterford worked the sliotar up the field and scored a goal. Fortunately for the Kilkenny supporters the referee blew his whistle and the goal was disallowed. Cian was so disappointed. Half-time came and all of the supporters knew that the All-Ireland was still within reach of both teams. Many a hurley was broken during the second half as both Waterford and Kilkenny did all they could to secure a win. In the 73rd minute the referee blew his whistle and the match was over. The supporters rose to their feet to applaud Kilkenny on their win. They were the All-Ireland champions and Waterford knew that they deserved it. Cian was disappointed but hoped that Waterford would be back in Croke Park next year.
